Texas State Rep. Steve Wolens has filed a resolution for consideration by the legislature of the Lone Star State. If approved by Texas lawmakers, it would ask Congress to immediately make public all material pertaining to the assassination of John F. Kennedy—all files used by the Warren Commission and the House Select Committee on Assassinations.

If certain files can't be made public, the resolution will ask Congress to prepare a report explaining specifically why individual documents must be withheld.

Maybe all the people who hate the movie "JFK" and director Oliver Stone so much will forgive him if the controversy over the film results in such a positive action.
